

September 11, 1969

Dear Adam:

I'd enjoy seeing you again. Why don't you arrange with my office to come in when you next have occasion to be in Washington.

Warm regards,

/s/

Henry A. Kissinger

Dear Henry:

A dialogue:

"If this war isn't over in six months, a lot of people will be going to the barricades. And I'm going to be there with them."

-- Adam Walinsky, March, 1969

"Adam, if we haven't shown real and definite progress, if we aren't well on our way toward being out in six months, then I'll be at the barricades with you."

-- Henry A. Kissinger to
Adam Walinsky, same day

It is now the first of September. The offices of the Vietnam Moratorium Committee are at 1029 Vermont Avenue N. W., 8th floor.

Or does the smell of death, like the air of crisis, never penetrate to San Clemente?

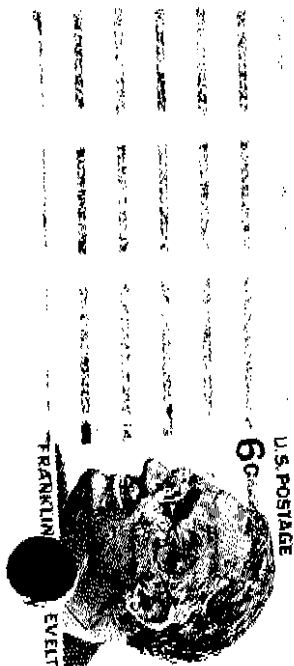

Yours (if not quite as ever),

Adam

My God, Henry, what is going on?
